Ralph J. Bunche (1904-1971) grew up in Los Angeles and worked his way through UCLA and Harvard University, where he earned degrees in government and international relations. He continued postdoctoral research in anthropology at Northwestern University, the London School of Economics, and Capetown University in South Africa. Bunche served in the US War Department, the Office of Strategic Services, and the State Department during WWII. He also negotiated an armistice between Palestinians and Jews, for which he won the Nobel Peace Prize. He worked on atomic energy issues and in the Congo with the UN and set up a department of political science at Howard University. He helped to lead the civil rights march organized by Martin Luther King, Jr., in Montgomery, Alabama in 1965; and supported the action programs of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) and of the Urban League.

The Department of Fair Employment and Housing (DFEH) is California's civil rights agency, which protects Californians from employment, housing and public accommodation discrimination, and hate violence. The DFEH investigates, conciliates, mediates, and prosecutes violations of the Fair Employment and Housing Act (FEHA), Unruh Civil Rights Act, and Ralph Civil Rights Act. See www.dfeh.ca.gov.
